To Our Gators on Their Graduation Day,

After years of perseverance, diligence and growth, you have arrived at the day we celebrate the achievement of your degree and the place you have earned among learned people. I am proud to congratulate you on your graduation day.

Each of you has taken a unique path that has led you to this pivotal moment in your lives, from part-time jobs and full-time academic schedules, your hard work is realized as you reap the benefits of your sacrifices. I am honored to meet you at the finish line this day, May 28, 2019, as your faculty, mentors, peers, friends, distinguished guests and family join together to commemorate your achievement.

From the day you set foot on this campus, you have been one of ours. Today, you go on to become a graduate of San Francisco State University with a place in a community striving for excellence and contributing to the world we live in.

Take this moment to acknowledge the growth in character, mind and body that you have experienced by investing in your education and ultimately your future. You have acquired skills, knowledge and values enabling you to become a positive force of change in the world around you, challenging life’s most rigid obstacles and solving the most perplexing questions. Allow me to give you the last study guide of your education at San Francisco State University: Own your own mind because now you are the answer.

It has been said many times, but it proves true, nonetheless, this is just the beginning. I am confident that you will go on to do extraordinary things in your life that will continue to make your San Francisco State University family proud.

Thank you for growing with us. I look forward to seeing you on the field at Oracle Park.

Sincerely yours,

Leslie E. Wong
Dear Class of 2019:

Today, you are in many ways different from the person you were on your first day on campus. In your time at the California State University, you have transformed from someone who learns about innovations in your field into a person fully capable of advancing those innovations.

Your educational transformation was spurred by your faculty, who trained you to look at the world with a critical eye and an open mind. Their efforts were supported by the work of your counselors, advisors, librarians, tutors and coaches who created an encouraging environment for you to succeed. All the while, your family, friends, colleagues and loved ones kept you motivated and saw you through your academic journey.

Your accomplishment today fills all of them — indeed all of us — with pride.

You are now part of the 3.7 million CSU alumni who are powering California, the nation and the world. These alumni are solving our greatest challenges, educating the next generation, fighting for equality and creating new opportunities for economic prosperity.

I encourage you to stay connected to the CSU. Use these connections—both to your campus and to other CSU alumni—to expand your opportunities and to make a meaningful impact on your community and the world. I also encourage you to support the generations who endeavor to follow in your footsteps.

The word we use to commemorate an earned university degree is “commencement.” This is, of course, deliberate. Today is not an end, but rather a beginning. And as you embark upon your life’s journey, may your hard work and sacrifices pay dividends far beyond today’s celebration, both in your life and in the lives of those around you.

Congratulations, California State University Class of 2019. I look forward to all that you will accomplish.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Nancy Pelosi is the 52nd Speaker of the House of Representatives, having made history in 2007 when she was elected the first woman to serve as Speaker of the House. Now in her third term as Speaker, Pelosi made history again in January 2019 when she regained her position second-in-line to the presidency, the first person to do so in more than 60 years. As Speaker, Pelosi is working to lower health care costs, increase workers’ pay through strong economic growth and rebuilding America, and cleaning up corruption to make Washington work for all.

For 31 years, Speaker Pelosi has represented San Francisco’s 12th Congressional District in Congress. She has led House Democrats for 16 years and previously served as House Democratic Whip.

Pelosi brings to her leadership position a distinguished record of legislative accomplishment. She led the Congress in passing historic health insurance reform, key investments in college aid, clean energy and innovation, and initiatives to help small businesses and veterans. She has been a powerful voice for civil rights and human rights around the world for decades. Pelosi comes from a strong family tradition of public service in Baltimore. Married to Paul Pelosi, she is a mother of five and grandmother of nine.
Two things were clear about Maxine Hong Kingston from an early age: She was a born writer, and she had things to say about identity and culture. The child of Chinese immigrants, Hong Kingston won her first literary prize as a young girl with an essay for American Girl titled “I Am an American.”

Hong Kingston has done a lot more writing — and won many more honors — since then. Her first book, The Woman Warrior: Memoirs of a Girlhood Among Ghosts, was a global sensation, winning a National Book Critics Circle Award in 1976. Four years later, she received the National Book Award for her second book, China Men. Several more books followed, all of them taking deep looks at gender, ethnicity, immigration, prejudice and the individual.

Honored with numerous awards, Hong Kingston is the recipient of the Medal for Distinguished Contribution to American Letters from the National Book Foundation, the F. Scott Fitzgerald Award, the PEN West Award for Fiction, an American Academy of Arts and Letters Award in Literature, as well as the title of “Living Treasure of Hawai’i.”

Two U.S. presidents have honored her life’s work. For deepening the nation’s understanding of the human experience, she was awarded the National Humanities Medal by President Bill Clinton in 1997. Sixteen years later, President Barack Obama honored her with the National Medal of Arts.

Though she achieved fame as a writer, Hong Kingston began her career as an educator. After earning her bachelor’s degree from the University of California, Berkeley, she became a high school teacher, following in the footsteps of her scholar father. She eventually returned to Berkeley to teach, and today she’s an emerita faculty member.

“For decades, Maxine Hong Kingston has been exploring and celebrating the Asian American experience through her beautiful, brave writing,” said SF State President Les Wong. “She has continually challenged preconceptions, taken risks and brought to light insightful, sometimes painful truths. No writer could hope to achieve more, and I’m thrilled that our University is honoring her with the degree of Doctor of Fine Arts.”
Some people love their alma mater so much they come back to visit campus after graduating. Allam El Qadah (B.A., ’94) went a step further. After earning his degree in economics at San Francisco State University, he returned to put what he’d learned into practice by opening his first business: The Pub in the Cesar Chavez Student Center. Though he sold the Pub in 2001, his other ventures have expanded to include eight unique restaurants and an extensive catering service.

Before graduating, El Qadah was accustomed to catering to students in a very different way: He represented their interests as an elected member on the Student Union Governing Board for two consecutive two-year terms. During his second term, El Qadah served as chair, and he also sat on the Board of Directors of the United States Student Association, the country’s oldest and largest national student-led organization.

An immigrant to the United States — he was born in the West Bank and left the Middle East when he was 18 — El Qadah knows that higher education is one of the most effective paths to self-improvement and success. As a result, he has consistently invested profits from his on-campus businesses into initiatives that help needy students achieve their educational dreams. These programs include scholarship opportunities within the College of Ethnic Studies as well as longtime support for the Guardian Scholars Program, which helps former foster care youth graduate college. He has also served on a San Francisco State advisory commission studying campus climate and on the Hospitality and Tourism Management Department’s Advisory Council. In 1998, Mayor Willie Brown, Jr. appointed him to be a commissioner on the San Francisco Board of Permit Appeals, where he participated in more than 1,500 hearings, adding to his experience in handling complex issues and deepening his understanding of the rule of law.

El Qadah proactively sponsors and manages special campus-wide events, such as a luncheon fundraiser in response to the 2017 wildfires where his corporation donated the food and matched donations by SF State staff dollar for dollar. He’s also committed to providing SF State students with the kind of positive work experiences that help them get by in one of the most expensive areas of the country, which is why his corporation allocates over 80% of available positions to student hires.

“Allam El Qadah has been working hard on behalf of the University since his time here as a student,” said SF State President Les Wong. “He’s had a positive impact in more ways than I can count — enriching campus and changing students’ lives — which is why I’m so immensely pleased to see him receive the President’s Medal.”
After completing his bachelor’s and master’s degrees at San Francisco State University and his Ph.D. at Michigan State, he moved to Long Beach, California — and found that no one would rent him a home or office despite his degrees and status as an Army veteran. His belief in a meritocracy that transcended race was shaken, putting him on a new path. Instead of “the nicest Negro you ever wanted to see,” he had a new label for himself: “militant”.

At the height of the civil rights movement, White emerged as a powerful voice for change, challenging psychologists to better understand the unique experiences of ethnic minorities. In 1968, he helped found the Association of Black Psychologists, and his seminal 1970 article in Ebony magazine, “Toward a Black Psychology,” laid the foundations of black psychology, which introduced black perspectives into mainstream psychology. His books include The Psychology of Blacks: An African-American Perspective and Black Man Emerging: Facing the Past and Seizing the Future in America.

White was also a tireless ally to students of color at San Francisco State. He returned to the University as a professor of psychology and was serving as dean of undergraduate studies during the 1968 student strike. In response to the strike, he helped launch the Black Studies Program, the first of its kind at an American four-year college, and lay the foundation for the College of Ethnic Studies. After joining the faculty at California State University, Long Beach, he helped found the Educational Opportunities Program (EOP), which grew into a statewide program providing supportive pathways for disadvantaged students to study at CSU campuses. He also taught for 25 years at the University of California, Irvine, inspiring and mentoring countless students there to excel. In 2008, he was honored as SF State’s Alumnus of the Year.

“Joseph White isn’t just an outstanding alumnus, scholar and a respected former faculty member,” said SF State President Les Wong. “He’s an important part of this University’s history, for which he will be remembered and celebrated.”

2019 UNDERGRADUATE HOOD RECIPIENTS

The following students, who have achieved outstanding academic records at San Francisco State University, have been selected to represent the students of their respective colleges. On behalf of their classmates, they have received the symbolic investiture of the hood.

Representing Baccalaureate Degree Candidates

YUSRA MOHAMED ALI
B.S., Communicative Disorders
Graduate College of Education

Yusra Mohamed Ali draws her inspiration from her parents, who brought her and her siblings to the U.S. from Yemen when she was a baby. Their encouragement to pursue an education led her to become the first in her family to attend college. She is graduating with a B.S. in Communicative Disorders, the culmination of her childhood goal of becoming an educator and her desire to make a difference in children’s lives.

“Arabic-speaking speech-language pathologists are few and far between,” she said. “Becoming a speech pathologist will give me the necessary skills to give a ‘voice’ to those who are most vulnerable, the people who are often ignored and overlooked.”

While at San Francisco State University, Ali served as a tutor for incoming juniors in Anatomy and Physiology courses and volunteered at the Scottish Rite Childhood Language Center to teach creative writing to fourth- and fifth-grade students. She also worked as a teaching assistant in San Francisco State’s Early Childhood Education Center working with 3- to 5-year-old children.

Ali will return to SF State in the fall to work toward an M.S. in Communicative Disorders and pursue her dream of becoming a bilingual and bicultural speech-language pathologist serving children with complex communication needs.

NIRAJAN CHAND
B.A., Criminal Justice Studies
College of Health & Social Sciences

Nirajan Chand was born in Nepal in the midst of a civil war. The violence he experienced in his youth fueled his ambition for a life of public service, a goal sharpened when he pursued a B.A. in Criminal Justice Studies from SF State.

At the age of 16, Chand started a four month journey to the United States, exposing him to the hardships experienced by many in South and Central America. Upon arriving in the U.S. without documentation, he was detained for six months — time he used to teach himself English. After eventually enrolling in Berkeley City College, Chand transferred to SF State, where both the University’s history of activism and his courses inspired him to deepen his commitment to social justice and human rights.

“Criminal justice studies teaches us the flaws of the system, policy and inequality,” he said. “All the injustices in the criminal justice system are issues of human rights.”

Chand has been accepted into the human rights education graduate program at the University of San Francisco, where he’ll work toward a career that allows him to serve those with experiences similar to his.

MARIA JOSE LOZANO SANABRIA

College of Liberal & Creative Arts

B.A., International Relations

Maria Jose Lozano Sanabria moved to the United States from her native Colombia when she was 14. That experience as a child migrant informs the work and research she does today around migration policies. A summa cum laude graduating senior in International Relations, Sanabria served as managing director of the International Relations Journal as well as the project assistant for the College of Liberal & Creative Arts’ Social Science Alliance.

“We helped to promote social science majors, to show the importance of communication and critical thinking skills,” she said. “I’m very passionate about social sciences and its place in contributing to society.”

Sanabria was drawn to SF State by the quality and social justice interests of its faculty. Both her thesis on transformative justice in post-conflict settings and her paper on the land rights of internally displaced people explore methods of peace building and conflict resolution.

“Something I’ve really enjoyed is to be able to bring my identity and experiences as an immigrant to my discipline and also analyze what’s going on in my home country of Colombia,” Sanabria said.

Sanabria speaks English, Spanish and French fluently, has interned with Human Rights Watch, and will attend the prestigious Sciences Po University in Paris for graduate school.

MARIAH MANIBUSAN

B.A., Asian American Studies

College of Ethnic Studies

As a peer mentor for SF State’s Asian American & Pacific Islander Student Services Office, graduating senior Mariah Manibusan combined her interest in teaching with a passion for ethnic studies to mentor first-year students, an experience she describes as deeply personal and rewarding.

“As a person of mixed heritage [Chamorro, Korean and Filipina], Asian American Studies has given me the opportunity to explore my ethnicities and process through the trauma our community has had to endure,” she said.

The San Jose native was also a resident assistant for the University’s first Asian American and Pacific Islander floor on campus, hosting annual Sexual Assault Awareness programs every April. She was named Resident Assistant of the Year two years in a row and founded the first Residential Housing Association Asian American and Pacific Islander organization in the United States. Through the group, she created plans for educational programming and community engagement.

“I wanted to create something that is tangible and will be here for generations to come,” she said. “I hope it is a legacy I will be remembered for here at SF State.”

Upon graduation, Manibusan plans to work with nonprofit groups serving the Asian American and Pacific Islander communities.

OLIVIA TSAI
B.A., Decision Sciences and Finance
College of Business

Olivia Tsai is a Bay Area native who is passionate about helping people. In high school, for instance, Tsai performed more than 700 hours of community service for the elementary and middle school that she once attended in Pacifica. She brought that commitment to service to SF State as a Decision Sciences and Finance major.

During her sophomore year she was a student partner for WileyPLUS, helping other students learn to navigate the Web-based tool, which enriches coursework with online content. Tsai was also a student panelist at the Wiley Teaching and Learning Summit, speaking about trust and engagement in the classroom. For the past two years, Tsai has been a tutor for both the Decision Science Department’s operations management course and the Finance Department’s business finance course. She also served as president of the Decision Sciences Student Association and led a group of students to the Bay Area Decision Sciences Summit.

“I love working with my fellow classmates and helping them build their confidence in the two fields I’m passionate about. I couldn’t have done that without my supportive professors,” said Tsai. “Helping my fellow classmates succeed is something I’m really proud of.”

CHLOE ZIRBEL
B.S., Computer Engineering
College of Science and Engineering

After creating an augmented reality mobile application for an internship, Chloe Zirbel saw potential in the technology that went far beyond video games.

“We are living in a time of great technological wealth,” she said. “There is so much opportunity to provide aid and enrichment to consumers whose primary goal is not simply entertainment but physical recovery and well-being.”

Zirbel is graduating with a B.S. in Computer Engineering, and her research has been focused on developing a low-cost, interactive, virtual reality system to aid the rehabilitation of stroke survivors. She won first place for this work at the 2018 CSU Research Competition in the area of undergraduate engineering and computer science, and later that year she was the first author of a peer-reviewed paper on her research published in the Proceedings of the 2018 IEEE Global Humanitarian Technology Conference.

After graduation, she plans to pursue a software development job at a Bay Area company with a strong sense of social responsibility and a mission of making the world a better place.
ALEXIS ADSIT
M.A., Ethnic Studies
College of Ethnic Studies

As a Mexican American, Alexis Adsit said she chose San Francisco State University’s College of Ethnic Studies not only because of its rich history but the welcoming environment it brings to people of color.

Her thesis is a field study that delves into the power of performance for marginalized groups in the LGBTQ community. She has worked with local arts organizations such as Peacock Rebellion, an East Oakland-based crew of artists and activists who are queer and trans people of color. Her work looks to evaluate how performance opportunities impact artists, specifically transgender and trans femmes of color in the Bay Area, and how it empowers them and improves their quality of life.

Adsit also received her undergraduate degree at San Francisco State in Women and Gender Studies, and as a transgender woman she was active with the LGBTQ community on campus, contributing to the creation of the Queer & Trans Resource Center.

She has received two fellowships to pursue a doctorate in Feminist Studies at the University of Minnesota.

“It’s been an amazing time, and I’m excited to graduate,” she said. “But also I can’t really imagine what it’s like to be at a different campus because SF State has been such an amazing place for me.”

BOZHIDAR CHAKALOV
M.A., Economics
Graduate College of Business

Originally from Sofia, Bulgaria, Bozhidar Chakalov moved to San Bruno, California, in 2003 when he was 8 years old, and showed an interest in health care as an undergraduate student at Sonoma State University. As a graduate student in Economics, Chakalov currently works as a research assistant for Assistant Professor of Economics Sepideh Modrek in the Health Equity Institute at SF State. He has co-authored research with Modrek on how the #MeToo movement has brought new methods to text analysis. His findings were presented at several conferences and are currently under review for publication with the Journal of Medical Internet Research.

“It was great to find a mentor in Professor Modrek to help me with my goals,” he said. “To really be exposed to all of the social media content around the #MeToo movement was a very enlightening and eye-opening experience.”

During his time at SF State, Chakalov has been a member of multiple organizations and a graduate mentor to the Economics Student Association. During the summer of 2018, Chakalov taught in the Big Data Summer Program, which helps students develop the ability to do research and conduct data analysis in social science and health-related fields.

He plans to continue building his research skills and pursue a Ph.D. in Economics with an emphasis in Health.

JENNIFER LEVINE-SMITH
M.A., Equity and Social Justice in Education
Graduate College of Education

Between her years of work as a middle-school teacher serving mostly Latinx students from low-income backgrounds and running a nursery school with primarily middle-class white children, Jennifer Levine-Smith witnessed firsthand how the U.S. education system fails to serve some students. In search of solutions, she decided to pursue a deeper understanding of systemic injustices in education. Now she’s graduating from SF State with an M.A. in Equity and Social Justice in Education.

“I had come to this place where I knew that there are children who are suffering at the hands of the U.S. education system,” she said. “I want to be a part of helping to mitigate that suffering.”

Her thesis research details the progress in a rural community in the North Bay as community members work to undo the racial stratification present in a local school. She has presented her research at a number of conferences, and in 2018 she won one of two graduate student research awards given out by the California Education Association. She also leads the Healdsburg Early Childhood Education Committee and serves as board president for the Children’s Museum of Sonoma County.

Levine-Smith plans to continue her organizing work and activism around education while doing impactful educational research with deep roots in the community.

JODI MCWHIRTER
M.A., Mathematics
College of Science & Engineering

Jodi McWhirter is the daughter and granddaughter of math teachers. After earning a B.S. in mathematics from Calvin College, she went on to SF State, where she found both a community of fellow students excited about studying higher mathematics and a field of math she could call her own, combinatorics.

“I always loved counting things and finding patterns, and I didn’t realize there was a whole area of math devoted to that,” she explained. She will receive an M.A. in Mathematics from SF State and hopes to publish some research from her thesis, titled “Ehrhart Quasipolynomials of Coxeter Permutahedra.”

Outside of her research, McWhirter held officer roles in Mathematistas, a group working toward gender equity in math. “We’re trying to create a safe space for gender minorities in mathematics to come together and encourage each other,” she said. She also led the creation of a seminar series in which students practice giving talks about their research.

McWhirter was accepted to five Ph.D. programs around the country, and in the fall she will continue to study combinatorics at Washington University in St. Louis.

LORI PIRINJIAN
M.A., Anthropology
College of Liberal & Creative Arts

Lori Pirinjian uses critical feminist anthropology to look at contemporary Armenian women’s roles in an environment unreceptive to equal rights toward women. Her work is original and deeply researched, drawing on overseas fieldwork, legal cases, social media and her personal experience as an Armenian American. It is this personal connection to her research that has made this work particularly rewarding for her.

In 2016, she wrote and taught curricula on gender equality and women’s empowerment in Armenia as a teaching intern for the organizations Peace Dialogue and Society Without Violence. She gathered research about the patriarchal framework in Armenia and how it creates distinct gender roles and gender-based violence.

“Being in a space where I was trying to understand how these ideas came to be and how we can change them moving forward was so fascinating,” she said. “I was totally hooked and wanted to focus on that.”

Pirinjian has presented at the Society for Applied Anthropology, the American Anthropological Association and the Fifth International Conference on Genocide. She has received scholarships, fellowships and grants such as the Armenian-American Citizens’ League Scholarship, a Title VIII Fellowship from the State Department and a Jay Young Excellence in Anthropology Award. She was also a research assistant on the Richmond Environmental Risks Project and the San Francisco Day Labor Program.

Pirinjian plans to pursue her doctorate in Anthropology.

As a teenager, Nico Storrow (pronoun preference: they/them) experienced the isolation that can accompany coming out as queer and trans and saw how important it was to meet others who encountered similar challenges. That has driven their passion for working in schools to build community and provide accessible mental health services.

“I believe it is strong communities and connectedness that builds resiliency and keeps young people alive,” they said.

Storrow will graduate with an M.S. in Counseling with a concentration in Marriage, Family and Child Counseling and an emphasis in School Counseling. While at SF State, they provided therapy and facilitated support groups in year-long internships at Martin Luther King Jr. Middle School, Pinole Valley High School and the San Francisco nonprofit Queer LifeSpace. Along with conducting research and serving as a student leader in the Counseling Student Association, Storrow also worked as an instructor for the International Institute for Restorative Practices throughout their time in the program.

After graduation, they hope to “provide affirmative care for young people and their families from marginalized communities in a school or community setting and to help them connect with other people experiencing similar situations.”

Nicole Bolter, Kinesiology
For 120 years, San Francisco State University has distinguished itself as a vibrant center of scholarship, innovation and community engagement. Though it began as a school for local educators, today its more than 250,000 graduates are leaders in science, business, public service, journalism and the arts — virtually every sphere of activity — around the globe.

FOUNDED IN 1899 by an act of the California legislature, the San Francisco State Normal School was created to fill the city’s acute need for well-trained, experienced teachers. The school’s first location was a rented two-story building atop Nob Hill. The first graduating class — the class of 1901 — consisted of three dozen students, all women.

WITHIN A DECADE the normal school earned a solid reputation for its high-caliber graduates, innovative teaching methods and emphasis on practical experience. In the 1920s, the school began offering the bachelor of arts degree. When the Great Depression sharply curtailed the need for new teachers, the school expanded its programs to include a full liberal arts curriculum. In 1935, it became San Francisco State College. Its first master’s degree, in education, was offered in 1949.

ENROLLMENT QUADRUPLED in the five years following World War II. To accommodate growing demand, the college moved in 1954 to its present campus near Lake Merced, which now encompasses more than 140 acres. To bring intellectual cohesion to its evolving curriculum, San Francisco State developed the General Education program — a nationally known model requiring all students to take a unified core set of courses. In 1961, the college joined what would become the 23-campus California State University system and in 1974 was renamed San Francisco State University.

TODAY, the University has a diverse student body of more than 29,000. The University offers numerous degree and certification: bachelor’s degrees in 73 academic areas with an additional 45 areas of concentration, master’s degrees in 61 academic areas with an additional 36 areas of concentration, Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) in Educational Leadership, a Ph.D. in Education with a concentration in special education, a clinical doctorate of physical therapy (D.P.T.) jointly with University of California, San Francisco, 16 credential programs and 34 certificate programs. While justifiably renowned as a teaching university, SF State is also associated with outstanding research and scholarly activity in the arts, sciences, business, health, humanities and many other disciplines. The University attracts world-class faculty as well as extensive grants and contracts for cutting-edge research.
SAN FRANCISCO STATE’S REACH extends far beyond the Lake Merced campus, as well. In Marin County, the University’s Estuary & Ocean Science Center trains the next generation of marine scientists while monitoring the health of the Bay and its tidal marshes, eelgrass meadows and beaches. Located in the forests near the North Yuba River, the Sierra Nevada Field Campus gives students an immersive opportunity for learning about biological diversity, geosciences, hydrology, astronomy and more. And San Francisco State’s College of Extended Learning, based at the Downtown Campus on Market Street, offers a variety of continuing education courses, academic credit certificates and professional development certificates designed to advance careers and expand opportunities.

THE UNIVERSITY also reaches out through its long-standing commitment to community service. Hands-on learning and engaged citizenship have been hallmarks of a San Francisco State education since its first president, Frederic Burk, chose Experientia Docet — Experience Teaches — as the school’s motto. Acting on the principle that learning cannot be isolated from the world in which it is applied, the University partners with the community through many of its classes and a wide range of centers and institutes, including the Health Equity Institute, the Marian Wright Edelman Institute, the Veteran Documentary Corps and the Paul K. Longmore Institute on Disability. San Francisco State’s Institute for Civic and Community Engagement was launched to connect students, staff and faculty members with service opportunities that strengthen both their skills and the surrounding communities.

AS A RESULT of these efforts, San Francisco State’s leadership as a values-driven university is recognized nationally. The University is among a select group of schools in Princeton Review’s Colleges with a Conscience — institutions of higher learning that possess both “an administration committed to social responsibility and a student body actively engaged in serving society.” In addition, the campus was among the first U.S. colleges and universities to meet new classification criteria for community engagement established by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. In May 2011, the Corporation for National and Community Service selected SF State to receive its Presidential Award, the highest federal recognition a college or university can receive for its commitment to community service.

SAN FRANCISCO STATE’S proudest achievement, however, remains the thousands of graduates who are putting the skills, insights and ideals nurtured at the University to work. The students graduating today join these legions of accomplished alumni who are putting their passion into action around the world — and making the world a better place in the process.
ACADEMIC REGALIA

Participation in today’s 118th Commencement exercises links our graduates and faculty with scholastic antiquity. Many of the rituals seen at this ceremony stem from the European Middle Ages, when the church was the center of learning. At that time, academic gowns were a common form of dress retained by the clergy when the laity adopted more modern styles. The early European universities were founded by the church, and students, being clerics, were obliged to wear the prescribed gown at all times.

All San Francisco State graduates wear special robes of royal purple, one of the University’s official colors. The gown worn at the Commencement ceremony is indicative of the degree being awarded. Bachelor’s gowns have pointed sleeves; master’s gowns have oblong sleeves cut square at the end, with wrist openings; and doctoral gowns have bell-shaped sleeves with three velvet bands (symbolizing the third and highest academic degree) and velvet facings to the front. All gowns are designed to be worn closed, unlike many of their European counterparts.

All students awarded bachelor’s degrees wear a mortarboard cap, also of royal purple. On entering the stadium, the tassel is positioned to the right of the cap. During the ceremony, at the moment of graduation, the tassel is moved to the left of the cap, signifying conferral of the bachelor’s degree. Students receiving master’s degrees also wear a purple mortarboard, but with the tassel already positioned on the left of the cap. Students being awarded a doctoral degree wear a black velvet tam.

The size and shape of the academic hood and the width of its velvet edging also help to identify the level of the degree that the wearer has earned. Hoods designating the bachelor’s degree (worn here today only by the students chosen to represent their colleges) are 36 inches; those for the master’s degree are 42 inches; those for the doctoral degree are 48 inches and also include a cape, visible at the side. The shell of the hood is lined with the official color, or colors, of the college or university conferring the degree. San Francisco State University’s are purple and gold. More than one color is often displayed in V-shaped stripes, known as chevrons. The color of the hood’s velvet border indicates the field or discipline in which the degree is granted. SF State’s master’s degree hoods are edged in the following colors:

- Business .................. Drab (light brown)
- Education ......................... Light blue
- Ethnic Studies .................. Crimson
- Health & Social Sciences ............ Gold
- Nursing .......................... Apricot
- Liberal & Creative Arts .......... White
- Science & Engineering ............... Gold

Our faculty have earned degrees at top universities around the nation and the world. As they process into the stadium, their regalia make for a colorful display. The linings of their hoods (and sometimes the color of their gowns) identify the institutions from which they earned their degrees. Leading the Platform Party in the ceremony today is the chair of the Academic Senate, Professor Nancy Gerber, who carries the University mace, an ancient symbol of order and authority in both the civic and academic worlds.

The elevators at the Willie Mays Plaza and 2nd & King entrances provide access to all levels of the park. The elevators at Lefty O’Doul Plaza and Seals Plaza provide access to the Promenade Level only. In addition, at Willie Mays Plaza there is an escalator which will move guests up before the ceremony and change direction after the graduate procession to bring guests down after the ceremony.

Guests may call Guest Services at 415.972.2156 and leave a detailed description of the lost item, including when and where they think the item was misplaced. Guests may also email lostandfound@sfgiants.com with this information.
